Dear Sirs,

I have recently received a pack with information regarding the compulsory purchase of some of my land, it offered a chance to object to this but we all know that no amount of objections will change what is about to happen.

My main concern now is how I am going to have my privacy and security protected plus the fact that I have nowhere to put my horses other than my small paddock while the work is in progress. The machinery which is bound to be brought in to build this bridge and road with frighten them and I dread to think what will happen.

The back of my house at the moment looks out onto beautiful trees and fields and what I have to look forward to is workmen, noise and dirt while this road is built.

I would be interested to hear what will be offered to protect me?

Regards
Denise Richardson
